Many people believe that science and religion are contrary to each other. But this notion is wrong. As a matter of fact, both are complementary to each other. The aim of both these institutions is to explain different aspects of life, universe and human existence. There is no doubt that the methods of science and religion are different. The method of science is observation, experimentation and experience. Science takes recourse to progressive march towards perfection. The rules of religion are faith, intuition and spoken word of the enlightened in general, while science is inclined towards reason and rationality, spiritualism is the essence of religion.

In earlier times, when man appeared on earth, he was over-awed at the sight of violent and powerful aspects of nature. In certain cases, the usefulness of different objects of nature overwhelmed man. Thus began the worship of forces of nature – fire, the sun, rivers, rocks, etc. The holy scriptures were written to ennoble, elevate and liberate the human spirit and mind. But the priestly class took upon itself the monopoly of scriptural knowledge and interpretation to its own advantage. Thus the entire human race was in chains. Truth was flouted and progressive, liberal and truthful ideas were suppressed and their upholders were punished. It was in these trying circumstances that science emerged as the saviour of mankind.
